BARBOURVILLE, KY., FRIDAY, JANUARY 20, 1922

ONE DOLLAR AND FIFTY CENTS A YEAR IN ADVANCE

BRIEFS FROM COMPANY "G"
149th INF., KENTUCKY N. G.

Some of the very important members of the company attended a party in Cincinnati last Sunday night and failed to remember the hour of their return. You can guess the rest.

The vigilant Ginks keep the members of the 149th Inf. watching their corners.

Ike Hinkle has turned to be the Milton of the Co. He is now composing poetry.

The 2nd Lieut. T. B. Kauffman is acting commander of the Company in the absence of Capt. R. H. Newitt. He is such a vigilant commander the boys do not realize the absence of their splendid captain.

Delmar Jarvis is pining about the office of the company seeking a leave of absence to visit Cincinnati.

Russell Bowman was a visitor to relatives and friends in Latonia on Tuesday.

The bugler of the 149th Inf., Wm. C. Hughes, has almost learned to blow "chow call." It is rumored he will soon be walking post again.

Two boat loads of Ginks, in an effort to blow up the plant, attempted to land on the banks of the Licking River but they were very quickly dispersed when the scanning eyes of the boys from Barbourville caught sight of them and opened a volley of fire.

The "Rip Van Winkle" Sgt. E. E. Wyatt said he could not get enough sleep in the barracks and has proceeded to his home station. The boys are hoping that he may be accommodated.

The boys say that they have eaten so much light bread that they are beginning to look Hungarian.

The presence of spuds upon the table causes the boys to have a blushing sensation when the spud wagon passes.

New shoes are now the order of the day. Jack Hudson is nursing a corn as a result.

SERVICE AT JAIL

Under the supervision of Rev. John Owen Gross service was held at the jail Sunday, with the Ladies Quartette of the Methodist Church leading the singing which was very hearty. Rev. A. A. Ford, the new minister of the Christian Church, preached the sermon.

TUESDAY CLUB

The Tuesday Club met with Mrs. John L. Stanfill on Jan. 9th, with a large attendance. The following program was given with Mrs. F. D. Sampson as leader:

Eugenics in Relation to Heredity. Mrs. F. D. Sampson.

Birth Control Conference.—Mrs. Ben C. Herndon.

Inheritance of Mental Traits.—Mrs. James R. Tugge.

Miss Mildred Murphy gave a reading entitled, "The Hammer and the Corkscrew."

Visitors present were Mrs. S. T. Davidson, Miss Mildred Murphy, Miss Mabelle Heger and Miss Blanch Whittington.

WHY NOT A KIWANA?

Two weeks ago we suggested that a Kiwana Club be started in Barbourville and also said that the business men of the younger class should take hold of the development of the city as the future is theirs. We have met with the comment that there's no sticking together in Barbourville; that this was done in the past and that was done and no one took any interest in the matter. All we have to say is that the business interests that cannot stick together ought to be ashamed of themselves and try again.

We have recently witnessed a taking up of new enterprises by a few young men of the city which proves what two or three can do. If a few more of the younger minds will get their heads together, decide what is needed in Barbourville and get it going it will be then found that it is easy to work together. By that time some of the older heads may come to the belief that life is not ended for them and will join in. There is no use dying from the neck up until the grim reaper comes along. A Kiwana Club would be the best means of getting together. We trust one will be started.

TEDDY PAYS HIS OWN TAX

Mrs. D. W. Slusher had one of the nicest tax payers she has ever met to pay her a visit Monday. His name is Teddy Harbin and he knows lots of things, among them how to approach a lady and worm his way in to her affections. Teddy entered the County Clerk's office carrying a dollar bill for a dog license for a dog the family owns. As he carried the dollar bill in his mouth, he had nothing to say, but he waited till Frank Harbin told him just what to do, he being unused to legal methods.

Frank told him to take no notice of the mere men in the office, but to go to the lady who issues licenses for dogs. Teddy hunted up Mrs. Slusher and sidling up to her, he said as plainly as a fellow can who has a dollar bill in his mouth, "How do you do, awfully glad to meet you. Please sell me a license for a nice little dog we have in our family."

Mrs. Slusher naturally petted such a polite little fellow and sold him the license, giving him a dog's tag to prove that the family dog was a person of consideration. Teddy then smiled as a dog can when pleased and gave Mrs. Slusher to understand he had enjoyed the little joke of buying a license for himself. He then took Frank home.

Prentiss, Miss., Jan. 10th, 1922. Mr. Fred Burman, Publisher of the Mountain Advocate.

Dear Sir:

Enclosed you will find P. O. money order for $1.50 for our home paper. We can't do without it for it keeps us posted as to what is going on around Barbourville and elsewhere. So send it right on.

Respectfully,

Mrs. D. W. Beets.

DAD'S THE GOAT

You know him. You have all met him, big, generous-hearted, hard-working, sacrificing "dad."

He wants to see his children educated, wants mother and the girls to have nice clothes, wants to give the boys a start in life, and it keeps his nose to the grindstone from year's end to year's end. He is in the treadmill now and there is no stopping. But suppose he had commenced in youth to save a little, only a little each week, what a help that money would be to him now. Young man, you may be a dad some day yourself. Better begin saving now. Use our bank.

The First National Bank has appointed the following Board of Directors for the year 1922:

J. M. Robison, F. R. Barner, C. C. Smith, John M. Tinsley, Dr. Sam Bennett, Noah Smith, James W. Wilson, Robert W. Cole, L. M. Cole, Sawyer A. Smith, J. D. Tugge.

AFTERNOON SEWING

Last Thursday afternoon about fifty ladies were summoned by Mrs. Robert W. Cole and Mrs. Bassett Minton to come and bring their sewing to the home of the latter in order to spend the hours together. There was much chatting as fingers put in dainty stitches. All were delighted to be with Mrs. Cole again after her recent illness.

Dainty refreshments of ices, cakes, coffee and candies, were served by Miss Roberta Cole, Miss Mary Agnes Heidrick, Mrs. Gibbs Lusk, Mrs. W. S. Hudson.

ARE YOU CLEANLY?

A few generations back our forefathers waited for summer when the river water was warm to take their annual bath. In these modern times everybody bathes and changes their under garments at least once a week and then call themselves cleanly.

But how about your outer clothing? How about that dark suit that comes in contact with all the dirt and dust of the street? Just because it is dark and does not show the dirt and germs is no reason you should wear it until it begins to smell. Every suit should be cleaned at least once a month. The Barbourville Steam Laundry will do it The Right Way for $1.50. Pressing 50cts. Just call up Phone 34 and your suit will come back the next day sweet and clean.

CANNERY FOR BARBOURVILLE

We are glad to learn that there is a project on foot to put a cannery in Barbourville for the benefit of those who put it in and also for the farmer who raises truck.

About a year ago we were approached by an outside concern which wanted to sell a cannery to some citizen and take an interest in it. The trouble was that, on investigation by the editor, the interest was velvet over and above the cost of the plant. In other words, the concern wanted to sell the plant at a regular price and retain half the stock which with a little of the remainder they could have picked up would have given them possession of the business.

It is understood a local man may put in a cannery and as on the previous occasion mentioned, the Advocate went to the trouble of lining up tomato growers and found a sufficient number of them eager to get a cannery started, we are sure that the same men will again sign up for acreage if a plant is assured.

Not only would a cannery find tomatoes profitable, but it could can corn, sweet potatoes, beans, berries, peaches, etc.

If this project is broached to the citizens, we trust it will have their undivided support. A cannery can be a remarkable help financially and in time would help make Knox County a trucking center of note.

DR. E. T. FRANKLIN HONORED

We are informed by Rev. J. O. Gross that Dr. E. T. It was announced last Sunday that there would be no services at our church this coming Sunday evening and that we would attend the revival at the Baptist Church. Bro. Allen stated Wednesday that he appreciates the friendly spirit of cooperation but yet felt that it was an unwise move to call in the services since their auditorium will not accommodate the Sunday crowds.

At the suggestion of Bro. Ford and with the approval of Dr. Minton, we are announcing Union Evangelistic service at the Methodist Church this coming Sunday evening at 7. Special music and inspiring congregational singing. The preacher will be announced Sunday morning from the different churches.

The debonair good humor of both artists, their fine talent along their whole line of entertainment, proved exceptionally pleasing. The whistling of Mrs. Winters in which she imitated the birds was different from anything ever heard previously in Barbourville. The whole performance received unstinted applause.

BIRTHDAY PARTY

Mrs. S. F. Kelley, with her husband, Rev. S. F. Kelley, celebrated her seventy-fifth birthday Thursday, January 12th, by serving a chicken dinner and all the good things that go with such a meal. Those present were: —Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Pitman and daughter Mrs. C. N. Sampson, Mrs. H. R. Kelley and daughters Miss Sadie, and Mrs. Russ Faulkner with her little son Junior, and Miss Sarah Kelley, a grand daughter from Augusta, Ky.

Mrs. Kelley is enjoying very good health, doing her own housework and finding some time to do fancy work, crochet, knitting and piecing quilts. Not being able to hear very well she finds great pleasure in her work and reading.

May she enjoy many more happy birthdays.

NOT GUILTY

The jury which tried the cases against Jim Stivers, Pitt Stivers, John Burchell and Ted Marcum, all charged in connection with the shooting of Deputy J. C. Coldiron at Lynch in July, brought out a verdict of not guilty, Friday. Attorneys for the State were Judge W. F. Hall and Commonwealth Attorney B. B. Golden. For the defense Gov. James D. Black and Judge Gilbert of Pineville. According to the Harlan Enterprise, the legal battle on both sides was brilliant.

The cases against the defendants charging them with the murder of Policeman W. R. Holcomb and Carl Fulton at the time Coldiron was killed were continued to the 7th day of next term of court.

JACKSON-HAMPTON

Clarence R. Jackson and Miss Bertha Gerdnier Hampton were quietly married Dec. 29th at the home of the Rev. J. H. Blackburn.

The bride is one of Knox County's best educators and a very charming young lady. Mr. Jackson is one of the business men of the town. He is at present connected with A. W. Hopper's store but until recently has been engaged in the oil business in Johnson County.

We wish them many years of happiness.

CONGRESSMAN ROBSION WORKS FOR EX-SOLDIERS

An Advocate of Good Roads
He offered the good roads bill, which recently passed, and had it in charge in the House. There are two roads ideas in Congress—one, known as the Townsend plan, to confine Federal aid strictly to interstate or transcontinental roads and to have the law administered by a commission here in Washington; the other to build interstate and intercounty systems, linking up the farmer with his market and bringing the producer and the consumer closer together, to be administered by the Department of Agriculture.

Speaking in support of his own bill in the House, Representative Robson said:

Less than 2 per cent of the highway travel of the United States is interstate, (from State to State.) The other 98 per cent of highway travel is intercounty or within the States.

The Townsend plan proposes Federal aid for a system of roads interstate in character, a few transcontinental lines for the "tourists" and "joy riders" of America, the 2 per cent of highway travel.

The Robson plan proposes a connected system of intercounty and interstate roads to receive Federal aid, a farm-to-market, producers-to-consumers' system to take care of the 98 per cent of travel as well as the 2 per cent and bring the benefits of Federal aid to every county in America.

"There are now about 9,000,000 motor vehicles in the United States. One-half of these, as well as a large majority of the other vehicles, are in the hands of the farmers. The farmers and business men must have good roads as well as the tourists and joy riders."

The Robson plan is indorsed by the Federal highway officials, the state highway officials, and the farm organizations of the Nation."

This latter plan was adopted in the recent road law carrying $90,000,000, of which $75,000,000 is to be expended in co-operation with the States, and the other $15,000,000 for forest roads and reservations. With nearly 200,000,000 acres of land in this country controlled by the Government it is important to have roads and trails maintained thru these areas, not only to provide routes, but for protection of the National forests from fire.

That money is for the remainder of the present fiscal year, ending on June 30, 1922. "We shall continue to fight for a program to provide $100,000,000 a year for the next several years to be administered under the new law," Representative Robson said.

He likes to talk proudly about his home district, about "Kingdom Come" and the home people, who all know him as "J. M." and to whom he always writes, "Dear Friend."

This big-hearted, capable Kentuckian, gaunt Lincolnlike in stature, is thoroly self satisfied that he is representing the finest and noblest and truest people in the greatest district in the Union. He will tell you that at the outbreak of the Spanish-American War thousands of the young men from that district volunteered—so many that they could not all get into the service.

Those mountain people have always been loyal to the core to the Government and intensely patriotic, he says. "During the World War no man, woman, or child in my district was convicted of disloyalty to the Government—and that's a very proud boast. While it is a mountainous country and the people are considered to be poor, yet one county in my district oversubscribed its quota to the Liberty Loan every time and more than any other county in the United States."

"Another county oversubscribed

A Mother's Advice

Health is Vital to You, Mothers!

Birmingham, Ala.—"After becoming a mother my health gave way. I suffered severely with a pain low down in my right side. My sister-in-law, having been cured of a bad case of feminine trouble by taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, advised me to take it, which I did. I am now starting on my third bottle and the pain has all left me. My husband said to me the other day, 'That Favorite Prescription must be wonderful medicine, I don't hear you complaining any more.'—Mrs. Ruth Williamson, 4016 First Avenue.

You should obtain this famous Prescription now at your nearest drug store, in tablets or liquid, or write Dr. Pierce, President Invalids' Hotel in Buffalo, N. Y., for free medical advice.

is quota for the Red Cross more times than any other county in the Nation.

We have an upstanding hero of the war, Sgt. Willie Sandlin, who lives in the mountains of Leslie County away off the railroads. According to the records in the War Department this young man, single handed, captured two machine gun nests and killed 24 Germans. For this exploit he received the Congressional Medal of Honor and the highest medals of honor of all the Allied Nations.

"There are two things you all should know about the mountain people of eastern Kentucky. Their ideas are sound on Government and religion. In the first place, my district has a purely Anglo-Saxon population; rarely, now and then, you can find a foreigner. My people believe in Government by law, in the American institutions, and in the old-time religion. They are not interested in the 'isms' of the world. Among them there is no such thing as Bolshevism, Sovietism, I. W. W., anarchism, or anything like that.

"My district is very rich in natural resources. We have fine coal and timber and our resources are being rapidly developed. We are destined to be one of the most prosperous sections of the country, contributing to the comfort and happiness and needs of all parts of the country. There is now located in my district what is probably about the largest coal mine in the world, where 12 coal cars are loaded in 5 minutes. It is developing in population and wealth more rapidly than any other section of Kentucky."

And the people back home, especially the Civil War veterans, the Spanish-American War veterans, and the heroes who came home from the World War have just as enthusiastic regard for Mr. Robson as he has for them and for the future of "Kingdom Come." His desk is stacked high with letters of appreciation—the most human letters anyone could hope to read.

***

Just as he has labored and is laboring for the Civil and Spanish War veterans, Representative Robson is doing the utmost of his very efficient ability for the boys who are back from the World War and the great adventure overseas. He introduced a soldier's bonus bill and made a fight for it. Finally all the soldiers' bonus measures were referred to the Ways and Means Committee. When the Fordney bill came out Representative Robson supported it. He gave one of the most caustic speeches made in the House in many years when bonus legislation was under consideration, replying to the attacks made on the bonus and the soldier bills by two big Kentucky newspapers. He said:

"The big interests and the big and powerful newspapers are fighting the bonus. We should not forget that but for the wonderful patriotism, courage, and sacrifice of these men we would be paying twenty times as much bonus to the Hunns."

It was after that speech that Speaker Gillette met Representative Robson in the Speaker's lobby and, with reference to Robson's attack on his antagonists, said, "It's no wonder you have feuds in Kentucky."

The first speech that Representative Robson ever made in Congress was in favor of vocational training for disabled soldiers when that measure was brought out of the Committee on Education, of which he is a member. He said:

"One of the greatest thoughts of the present century is the purpose of the American people to retrain our disabled heroes, fit them and inspire them to become self-sustaining. An enlightened humanity thruout the ages must applaud this purpose. It will be approved by sound economical policy. The cost and labor should not be considered. It should be a labor of love and gratitude. I consider myself unusually fortunate that my first speech on the floor of the House is in behalf of the disabled American soldiers and sailors of the World War."

Coming from Kentucky, the home of "mountain dew" and "moonshine," Representative Robson was in a peculiar position with regard to the prohibition bill. He told the House, "No man, woman, or child in my district has asked me to vote against prohibition. I am proud of my district."

Representative Robson has had very strong notions in regard to the restriction of immigration and has several times made vigorous speech on that measure, asking: "How long shall America continue to be the garbage can and dumping ground for the world? We now have millions of men and women out of employment in our country. Should we add to this army of idle workers by bringing in millions from foreign lands? We need stringent immigration laws and a tariff to protect American labor and American industries."

Discussing the deportation of undesirable aliens, he said: "No foreigner who attempted to stab our soldiers in the back during the World War should be permitted to enjoy the shelter of the American Flag."

As a life long friend of the coal miners and as a business man as well Representative Robson has had an unusual opportunity to study unbiased, the labor-capital problem. He has well defined views on the subject and says: "Disputes between capital and labor cannot be settled by force. Labor can do its cause no greater service than to kick out every man who is disloyal to our country and should refuse to take in any man who does not love our country and our Flag."

All of which goes to show what manner of man this good friend of the soldier is, and how his heart beats. He has worked hard all his life and works hard now every day at the Capitol. But when his week's work is done he still remembers the seventh day. Each Sunday morning he may be found addressing a large class of men at the Ninth Street Christian Church in Washington. "Hale fellow well met" in political, social and civic life, this Kentuckian, big mentally and physically adds to his popularity every day by his frankness and his honesty of purpose. His armor is invulnerable because there is no crack or crevice in which the darts of criticism may lodge to do him injury. He is jolly, a good story teller, quick at repartee, and in all a man's man.

Judge Robson made his campaign for Congress on the platform of loyalty to Government, good roads, prohibition, better pay for the American soldiers, and increased pensions for the veterans of the Civil War and the Spanish American War. In the final election he carried the district by 18,000 majority. He was renominated.

Now my face is pinkish, my skin clear as a rose, my cheeks are filled out and my rheumatism, too, is gone!" This will be your experience, too, if you try S. S. S. It is guaranteed to be purely vegetable in all its remarkable effective medicinal ingredients. S. S. S. contains a new history for you from now on! S. S. S. is sold at all drug stores in two sizes. Capt. R. H. Newitt has gone back to Newport after a four days leave of absence. It is hoped the boys will soon be home. From a business standpoint it is hard on some of them to be away so long.

G. M. Richards recently installed a coal heater which attaches up to the hot water tank formerly heated by gas. It is proving very satisfactory and also heats the kitchen as well as serving as a supplementary cooking stove.

Dr. E. T. Franklin on Tuesday attended a special educational conference, called by State Superintendent Geo. Colvin. He later left for Covington to attend a board meeting of Union College.

J. J. Elliott, of the Wheeler Construction Co., which is building the road from Barbourville to the Bell County line, says work is entirely suspended until more settled weather prevails.

Even the coming of a revivalist may arouse the sporting instinct. At any rate a young fellow who caught sight of Dr. Martin, of Middlesboro who is conducting the Baptists meetings, remarked "I'll bet the preacher." He had doubtless seen Dr. Martin's cheery physog in the Advocate. If you would be alive to events, read it.

Miss Effie Jump will leave Wednesday of next week having resigned her position here as Red Cross County Nurse. She will be with her people in Tennessee some time before going on to her new work.

B. C. Sizemore, of Ottumwa, Iowa, is visiting his mother, Mrs. Almira Sizemore, N. Main Street, for six weeks. This is his first visit in sixteen years. Mr. Sizemore is railroading on the Burlington.

Mrs. George Tinsley was delighted to meet Miss Juliette Mather, of Birmingham, Ala., this week as they were friends in Chicago for a number of years. Miss Mather was here interesting B. B. I. girls in missionary work.

Maurice Black writes from the University of Kentucky that he is hard at work. Maurice is making good for his recent exams gave him a per cent above 95 in all his work which we think a dandy record for "only a mountaineer."

Knox County went over the top in the Woodrow Wilson Foundation allotment. The credit for the work is due to Mrs. Eula Faulkner, Mrs. J. Frank Hawk, Mrs. H. H. Owens, Miss Gertrude Black, Mrs. Geo. Tye and Mrs. T. J. Moore.

It is gratifying to note that the countrywide depression we hear so much about has not prevented the Hickory Mill running. This institution is a big thing for Barbourville from the standard of a payroll and also as enabling farmers to get ready money for their timber.

Mrs. G. E. McNeil was the recipient last week of two thoroughbred Rhode Island Red pullets sent to her by Mrs. James Hunter of Appleton, Minn. These were a gift from her son, W. R. McNeil, who has been farming in that state for the past three years.

Earl Mayhew was at Logan Gap last week arranging for a Community School later on. He is hopeful that he may persuade several farmers and business men to attend the Farm and Home Convention at the U. of K. Jan. 31, Feb. 1, 2, 3.

M. Sherman, of Baltimore, is here for two weeks helping to take stock at the New York Store and to discuss plans for pleasing the patrons of the store. He anticipates good times all over the country very soon. The store is now adjusted to 1914 prices.

Mr. and Mrs. Lynn Golden were over from Pineville Monday. They report a new club house nine miles out from Pineville on the Paige road.

There are fifty members in the club.

They have a nine hole golf links, tennis courts, swimming and a 12 mile asphalt road to travel over.

Fifty members of the National Guard of Williamsburg and other points are at Manchester this week during the meeting of the Circuit Court. Judge Johnson ordered the jury wheel cleared and a new set of names placed therein. He is determined to clean up those causes that are bringing trouble to Clay County.

Mr. and Mrs. Richards entertained on Saturday night with a chili con carne supper. Mrs. Richards has become an adept in preparing this favorite cold weather dish almost a la Mexican style. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Stewart and son Braxton, Mr. and Mrs. Gibbs Lusk, Mr. and Mrs. James Miles, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Burman and Bertha Burman.

Since the new post office is about ready for use, may we suggest that the crossing between the Harris Restaurant and the City Pressing Shop might be put in good shape. Dur-wet weather it is as slippery as sin and likely to cause falls to people trying to negotiate it at the same time that this portion of the street receives a heavy drainage of water. We have hesitated to mention the matter before as the Advocate is close by, but now that so many will be coming to the post office, we think at least a good gravelled walk should be provided.

CLEANING THE DOG

"THIS is the most wonderful soap ever offered the public," explained the volatile agent, as he opened his grip. "It will clean anything under the sun. It will remove grease spots, polish tinware."

"Oh, I have no doubt it will restore hair to bald heads and make chickens lay eggs," said Mrs. Curfew, sarcastically. "I feel quite satisfied it's made of barks and buds and healing herbs, but I don't want any of your marvelous soap, having had experience with other marvels of the same kind. Last fall an agent came along, selling a soap that would do everything you can think of, from beautifying the female complexion to chasing the cows out of the corn. The agent talked as though he had eight-day works in him, like our old grandfather's clock, and he didn't make any impression until he said the soap would heal all skin diseases of man or beast. It happened at that period that Mr. Curfew had an imitation bird dog that he traded a good watch for, and gave a dollar to boot, said dollar having been extracted from my private savings, and never returned.

"This dog had the mange or some disagreeable disease that caused him to itch in the most reprehensible manner. He was always scratching and rubbing against everything he could find, first and last. One day he upset my parlor table and broke all my best china, which I had placed on the table a few minutes before. He also upset the sewing machine and the churn, and I don't know what else.

"So when Mr. Curfew heard that the agent's soap would cure skin diseases, he insisted upon buying a cake, and after he had gone he began to wash the dog with that marvelous soap. I don't know what ingredients said soap contained, but after it was cubed into the dog's skin that unfortunate animal became frantic and acted as though its reason tottered on its throne. Mr. Curfew tried to hold the beast, and it reached around and bit his ear almost off, and of course he released it then, and the uproar he made, as he danced around the house, holding his ear with one hand, and summoning the police with the other was simply scandalous.

"Meanwhile the dog ran off, entirely demented. Mrs. Turpentine was crossing the road pushing her baby buggy, when the animal collided with said vehicle, and spilled her offspring into the mud. I am willing to admit that such an experience was aggravating, but I don't think it was taddylike in Mrs. Turpentine to come over to my house with her muddy infant under her arm, and shake her fist under my nose, and tell me that for five cents she'd pull all my hair out."

"Old Mr. Poppinjay was standing on the corner, leaning on his cane, waiting for a street car, when the crazy dog ran against his cane and he took a header into the gutter, and I really felt sorry for him when I saw him going home ten minutes later, dripping slush and mud like a sea-serpent, but I couldn't sympathize with him so very much when he picked up a brick as he was passing our place and smashed a panel in our front door.

"For two days people were coming here claiming that we ought to reimburse them for damages done by that dog. It seemed that the unfortunate animal made a circuit of the town, and left a trail of desolation behind him. He upset six pans of milk for Mrs. Trumpeter, and scared Smith's family horse so it ran away and injured several members of the family, and killed eight prize chickens for Mr. Dippy, and I don't know what else. In view of which, I think we can struggle along without any of your marvelous soap."

An Intellectual.

"You often hear it said that Mrs. Glithery has all the brains in the Glithery family."

"But Mr. Glithery is a successful business man."

"Oh, yes. However, he merely makes money. While sipping tea and smoking a perfumed cigarette, Mrs. Glithery can discuss more abstruse questions than have nothing to do with housework, or the upbringing of the Glithery twins than any other woman in her set." —Birmingham Age-Herald

Blocks Easily Removed.

A prominent tradesman in south west London expostulated with a gang of road repairers regarding a small mountain of wood blocks dumped in front of his premises.

The protest being ignored, he surreptitiously stuck a card, bearing the inscription: "Please take one," on the offending heap.

The philanthropic suggestion was quickly acted on by passers-by, and more than half the blocks had disappeared before a vigilant policeman removed the card. —London Express.

LENA'S BABY

By MARY J. HITCHCOCK.

© 1921, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

Angela put the pan of biscuits down on the table and looked out of the pantry window. At the foot of the lane Amos was talking with the rural delivery man. Angela's sigh became a sob. How much of her present unhappiness would be gossip tomorrow? A tear spattered onto the bread board—another and another. Angela put her head down on the table and cried.

Summer heat, the time when romance calls to the blood; blood heat, the period when desire sings through one's veins—Angela had known each, and now it was zero!

"It wouldn't be so hard if I had someone else to love—baby, now!"

But the thought was fresh torture to Angela's bruised heart. Hadn't she hoped from the first that there would be children at Meadowbrook? Hopes had become prayers and heaven had been deaf! That was the added bitterness to her present grief. If Amos left her for that other woman there would be nothing but the long, lonely years! Angela knew. She had matured early, faded soon, and she had none of Lina's plump prettiness in her own lean, lank shapelessness.

And Lina Summers, who had laughed at the love of two men, was claiming Amos for her own.

"What you going to do about it, now that you know about us?" Amos had demanded. "There ain't no use our trying to go on same as if you'd never found it out. You'll have to say—"

But Angela had said nothing. Not then, nor through the long night which she had spent in the spare room. In the morning she had come to the homely tasks of every day.

And out in the lane Amos was turning toward the house—walking quickly, as he was apt to do when excited or troubled.

"Lina ain't expected to live the day out," he cried, standing white and anxious eyed in the doorway. "She went to a dance at the Corners last night and her husband was there. They say he tried to make her go home with him, but she jumped into an auto and tried to run it herself. I've got to go—"

"Me! You came for me!"

"I'm banking on you standing by her. Just because she's a woman, too. Maybe she won't last till we get there, but I told her husband you'd come—" "Her husband. Is he—?"

"Been there all day—and all worked up, now she's going so fast!"

"I'm sorry for all of you," Angela found courage, and voice in the same minute. "She's done all she can to us, but I can't forget—"

"Last night?" Amos interrupted. "I know—I said things—but I thought, seeing as there's a baby—"

"Baby!" Angela grew tense.

"Didn't you know? She ran away from her husband because she didn't want to be tied down to children. He was trying to make her go home with him on account of the other little girl he didn't know how to take care of himself. Seems like she didn't run away soon enough, though, and—"

But Angela was no longer listening. In a minute she was slipping into her coat, pulling on her hat.

"Hurry!" she commanded, and again as they walked through the door-yard to the waiting wagon—"Hurry!"

* * * * *

In the upper chamber where Lina was breathing out her life two men and a woman watched her labored gasping. Angela moved close to the tiny hub of humanity that had slipped in as Lina was called out. Amos opened the door as the doctor returned from below stairs.

The woman on the bed opened heavy lidded eyes.

"I've made a lot of trouble—for all of you—" Her gaze left the others, fastened itself on the husband who leaned over her. "I'm sorry!" With an effort she turned her head toward Angela. "If I had been like you. You're a born mother. Could you—?" The dim eyes finished the question.

"I've been promising God I'd be a good mother—if—oh, I want to be!" Angela cried.

* * * * *

"Queer, you ain't never said a word to me about it since Lina died," Amos said to Angela one day. "But I want you to know—I wasn't as ready to leave you as you thought. She wasn't the kind to please me for long. I don't know what got into me—"

"It had to happen." Angela was humming at the sewing machine where she was making up tiny dresses for Lina's child. "I'd been praying for years for children I wasn't never meant to get. Maybe there wasn't no other way of making it come true!"

"Making what come true?" Amos asked.

"The power and the glory," Angela answered, and would say nothing more.

"THE PINNACLE"

By H. H. FUSON

This book, bearing the sub-title "And Other Kentucky Mountain Poems," is aptly named. It is cast in a pure atmosphere of thought against a background of universal truth. The unity of thought in each poem stands out definitely like the mystic silence of the mountains—eternal, omnipotent, grand. As an illustration of this, I quote here his tribute to the mountain school house: "Stand firm, ye school house yonder, A symbol of the world advancing! Send your light upon men to wonder At Pegasus in the air prancing! Be to me the light that burst on Rome

When civilization sought expansion!

Be the herald of that new home That finds for the soul its mansion. Train the generations each time anew:

Send them forth with powr to do What men have dreamed is due The race that lifts up not to subdue!"

In a scholarly manner and in an appreciative sense the author writes his poems of what has been, of what is, and of what shall be. Every sentence springs from a deep fountain of thought, with a clear, bold, determined impetus, much like the mountain brook that sings its way among the rocks as it makes its way to the great sea.

In a wider sense these poems make for character building as well as for interest. Thru the whole book runs that morale, made up of faith and whole-souled endeavor, which form that pure and undefiled manhood, known in our country as Americanism. Under that standard the American faces the full and extended boundaries of life with its rivers to cross and its mountains to climb, and fights his battles over every foot of the soil. He faces the issue with the courage of his conviction, and, whatever the result, he knows not defeat and is content. Two mountain youth—York, of Tennessee, and Wright, of Kentucky—won the first and second prizes in the World War for the greatest single-handed achievement. This record shows the inherent heroism and resourcefulness of the mountaineer.

These poems breathe of the mountains. The originality of the author charms and holds the attention while the voice of nature tells its own story. It has a big message of truth and good-will and furnishes a glimpse of the physical, natural and mental life of the mountains of Kentucky.

This book comes out in a most opportune time—a time when all the countries of the world are being weighed in the balance and when reconstructed opinions are taking the place of smaller ideas.

The mountaineers, historically traced from the days of the colonization of America to the present, are shown to be a brave, intrepid, resourceful, patient people. They held the pass thru the center of the territory of the West, followed the Star of Empire and expansion in its mighty onward sweep, guarded the northern and southern passes against the combined forces of the French and Indians on the one hand and the combined forces of the British and Indians on the other hand. The mountaineers have been on the field to battle to the finish in every victory for the cause of liberty from the beginning of the Revolution to the close of the World War.

The author of this book, Prof. Henry Harvey Fuson, is a graduate of Cumberland College, Williamsburg, 1905, of the University of Cincinnati, Cincinnati, Ohio, 1920, and is at present Principal of the First District School, Covington, Ky.
